The latter part of last week information was received in New London of the death in Kansas City of David R. Stevens in his elikty-fifth year. There was a time when Mr. Stevens was a leading local politician. well-known in New London county, where he served as county commissioner. Mr. Stevens came to New London a stranger, and after a while engaged in the carriage building business, and was Stevens came to New London a stranger, and after a while engaged in the carriage building business, and was hardly here a week when he took a hand in the republican politics of the town. In a short time he was one of the leaders. Mr. Sievens pushed himself into the chairmanship of the town committee and actually took charge of the political affairs of the town. He went into the court of common council as a member, was nominated for the legislature and insisted upon his appointment as county commis-indicans, the a continue of the city many find resided in the city many form them of the city many from Kansas was becoming a boss. Then there was a revolt and Mr. Stevens was relieved from political power and influence. He retired from business and politics, returned from business and politics, returned to Kansas City, and was unknown to the memory of Mr. Williams, and believes that it would be well if more notice was taken of departed if more notice was taken of departed citizens who were once leaders in the city or who had to Kansas City, and was unknown to the majority of people of New London of today and almost forgotten by his acquaintances of long ago, who once recognized his as the man on the throne in New London politics. Mr. Stevens was greatly interested in church work and was considered a model as well as influential citizen.
